1 INTRODUCTION

The maximum support available to you in 2019-2020 will depend on whether we fund you as an independent student or a young (dependent) student.

If we treat you as a young student then we will work out how much support you can get by using the income of your parents.

If we treat you as an independent student then we do not require the income of your parents. However, we may still include the income of your husband, wife, civil partner or partner.

2 INDEPENDENT STATUS

You must meet one of the following conditions to receive support as an independent student.

- You have reached the age of 25 before the start of the academic year we are assessing you for (1 August for autumn start courses).
- You have supported yourself from earnings or benefits outside full-time education for any three years before the first day of the first academic year of your course. This can include government training schemes and advanced research level postgraduate study where you received an award.
- You have a child who is dependent on you at the start of the academic year, and who lives with you for the majority of the week.
- You have no parents living.
- You are married, in a civil partnership or live with a partner prior to the first day of the first academic year of your course. We can review this if your circumstances change during your course.
- You are permanently estranged from your parents for at least 12 months before the start of the academic year we are assessing you for. Please contact us for advice as you will need strong supporting evidence.

- If there are any other special circumstances that you think may apply to you, please contact us for advice.

3 YOUNG (DEPENDENT) STATUS

- If you do not meet any of the 'independent status' conditions then we can support you as a young student. This means we will use the income of your parents (or step parents, parent's partner) to work out how much support we can give you.
